DEMOCRACY

Hong Kong, Saturday, Nov. 19, 1988.

The firm belief of the philosopher is that the fate of democracy is linked up with the fate of intellect.

That modern democracy should have orignated in England where philosophy had enthroned common sense and experience, is no mere accident of history.

It is no accident either that the French revolution should have sprung from the intellectual Age of Enligtenment. For democracy proceeds along the path of intellectual experience. It is inchoate, never completed, forever tentative. New experience necessitates constant readjustments.

Democracy it not to be considered as an ideal state of society already achieved but as an Harry Hawk eternal goal just as knowledge is an eternal goal. We must The British Broadcasting Cornot expect that it will solve all trouble and difficulty. The very essence of democracy is to have done away with miracles and magic formulas. Every step forward has to be paid for with considerable effort and patience.

dictatorship on the other hand resembles a man obstinately zigzagging from one side of the street to the other with a great show of careless energy Harry differs slightly from his and singing marching songs. In its tentative progress democracy resembles evolution while dictatorships spell adventure. Do you believe that the history of mankind is meant to be an evolutionary process or rather a series of adventurous incidents? Of course adventure is attractive, especially for young people.

Every revolutionary impulse is more or less adventurous and every extremist considers himself a romantic and takes pleasure in the risks of the political game.

Democracy, however, is not a game. It is a method of adjusting irrational factors to intellectual standards by coordinating and controlling them. It is the same process which our intellect applies to our experience, sentiments and motives—a process of sifting and comparing

Verdict—With Music

Fact can be as Gilbertian as fancy. The librettist of "Iolanthe," "The Mikado"—and how many other gems of polysyllabic persiflage?—would find a plot ready made in a case decided by the Recorder's court in Quebec recently.

man was charged with possessing burglars tools by night, having been arrested at 9.21 p.m.:

> Oh, woe betide the poor fellow,

Unless the judge's heart be mellow!

For one possessing burglars' tools after 9 p.m. must bear the burden of proving that he did not intend to use them in what W. S. Gilbert called "his employment."

Sir Arthur Sullivan would have written music in a minor key for this moment. But wait, and hark! There is balm in Gilead; and succor even in a solicitor. For the man's lawyer discovered that his client was arrested by daylight-saving time. Daylight-saving time, he held, does not apply to the criminal-code. The man, he contended, was arrested at 8.21 p.m.

The court accepted the plea, a report from Quebec states. Thus with implications on which Gilbert might construct a happy ending, the burden of proof swung from the defendant to the prosecution, which now must refute the claim that while in possession of burglars'. tools the man was not actually "maturing his felonious little plans."

It has set the figure of Harry Hawk, the military airman, in the Pantheon that includes, among others, Jack Tar, Tommy Atkins, Mr. Roe and Mr. Doe of legal fame, Pooh-Bah, Jeeves, and that preposterous patriot, wearer of the very old school tie of red, white and true-blue, Colonel Blimp.

> companions in that we know something of his previous career. For was he not one of the famous company that rode with Uncle Tom Cobleigh and all to Widdicombe Fair? In view of his unfortunate experience then with Tam Pearce's old mare, it is not astonishing that he has deserted her for Pegasus.

One wishes him every success, but one cannot help thinking that he suffers a trifle from an alliterative excellence, and is perhaps too true to be good. He has a touch of the robot. It was difficult for him to escape it, because he has been made to order—a fact that in itself may tend to shorten his term of office; for the name, that clothes a familiar fiction wears better for not having been bespoke.

'Unscrupulous And Ruthless'

FRAUD ACTION THAT LASTED 24 DAYS

An American company promoter, Mr. William Rhodes Davis, of New York, was described as an "unscrupulous and ruthless financier," by Mr. Justice Lewis, in the King's Bench Division when judgment was given in an action which occupied

The action was brought by Mr. Carl Frederik Glad and Aktieselskabet Gica, of Copenhagen, a company in liquidation. They made allegations of conspiracy to defraud against William Rhodes Davis and Henry Warren Wilson, financiers, of New York, the Foreign Oil Co. Inc., of Boston, U.S., and Crusader The following is the latest call over Petroleum Industries, of St. Helen'splace, Bishopsgate, E.C.,

Breach of another contract, signed at the Dorchester Hotel, W., in December, 1935, was also alleged by Mr. Glad.

The defence was a denial of the allegations, it being maintained that the Gica company could not fulfil its part of the contract.

Mr. Justice Lewis said that in the witness-box Mr. Davis was overbearing. He could not accept him as a witness of truth.

The most extraordinary fight England has known for years was announced last week, when contracts were signed for Arthur Danahar and Eric Boon, the two young light-weights whom the boxing public have been tion, to fight in private at a sec. venue within the next three weeks.

Arrangements were completed at the offices of Mr. Sydney Hulls, the Har-Now that the Volunteer Camps. ringay promoter, who stated that he was acting only on behalf of an anony-Boon and Danahar fight, and had offered a big sum of money for it to take place in private before his own friends and officials of the British Boxing Board of Control, who would be invited. The contest, he said, would be over eight rounds, at the light-weight limit of 9 st. 9 lbs.

Whether the result of the fight will be announced through-the Press, depends upon the arguments which have already started between the different parties interested.

Present at the signing of contracts were Mr. Sydney Hulls, Mr. John Harding, manager of the National Sporting Club, who have fostered Danahar; Boon's manager, Mr. Jack Solomans. and Danahar himself. Mr. Solomans sigued on behalf of Boon for the fights and Danahar put his own signature: to the contract.

The reason Boon and Danahar are fighting in private is stated to be that Danahar does not want to meet Boon in public other than at the National Sporting Club, while Boon is. equally emphatic that he does not want to meet Danahar there.

Mr. John Harding said:—"I do not approve of the match being in private at all. I am going to ask Danahar to appear before the directors of the National Sporting Club. I do not sec why the members of the Club who have, after all, been Danahar's stannchest supporters, should be prevented from seeing him in this fight against Boon.

The Club are not able to make a better-offer than that which has already been made to the two men, but. they can protest most strongly about the fight being allowed to go on in this-

Mr. Hulls stated that "The contract. has been definitely signed, and whether people argue about it or not, that is a concrete fact."

Larwood Retiring From County Cricket

Harold Larwood. Nottinghamshire and England fast bowler, is retiring from county cricket.

This news was contained in a statement issued by the Nottinghamshire: County Cricket Club, which reads: "It is a matter of general knowledge that for some time past, owing to the condition of his knee. Harold Larwood has been unable to bowl. Having come to the conclusion, founded on medical advice, that there was no likelihood of any improvement, Larwood has generously asked the committee to release him from the remainder of his contract, which has another two years to run. This offer the committee have accepted whilst deeply regretting the circumstances which have rendered it necessary."

Larwood has never recovered his true form since he returned from the tour of Australia in 1982-88, during "Every time I bowled last season." which he injured his left foot. He he added, "my knee used to swell underwent several operations, which badly. I discussed the matter with at the time seemed successful, but the my medical advisers and tried elastic strain imposed on his leg when bowling bandages without success.

"In view of this it was useless to consider bowling again, so I asked the club to release me."

Rowan Leaf Found Dying In Box

(By AIR MAIL) London, November 1. Rowan Leaf, a three-year-old filly, owned by Mrs. C. Rich, and trained by Walter Nightingall, at Epsom, was found dying in her box at the Links Stables, at Newmarket, when it was opened early yesterday. A stable lad made the discovery. A stable companion, Arc-en-Ciel, which was in an adjoining box, was found to be seriously ill, but is recovering.

Rowan Leaf and Arc-en-Ciel, with two others of Nightingall's horses, Sacred Fish and Celibal colt, had been sent by road from Epsom to Newmarket on the previous day. LEWIS'S TILT AT HEAVY-WEIGHT BOXING TITLE

London, November 8. TIWO seventeen-year-old tennis girls — Miss Rosemary Thomas and Miss Gem Hoahing, four-foot-six British-born Chinese girl were included yesterday in the official ranking list. Rosemary is No. 10, Gem No. 11.

They are two of the three young tennis wonders of the moment. The third is fourteen-year-old schoolgirl Jean Nicoll, of Harrow.

Rosemary is slim, wears glasses, found work in a dress store fatiguing, but stayed up late every night to pass her matriculation rather than give up tennis.

She has a fine tennis brain, plays well at the back of the court, passing even the most expert volleyers. She belongs to the Mrs. Moody poker-face variety of player.
